TX 201C Glitter and Doom: Cultural History of Berlin, Past and Present

Glitter and Doom is a two-course learning experience combining meetings and readings on campus during the Spring 2012 semester and a field trip with lectures in Berlin in May 2012. TX201C is the classroom segment of the experience. Students do not have to register for TX 202 in order to take this course. TX 201C and TX 202 are a 4-credit experience and can count toward the German major and minor and the Cultural World requirement of the IA major and minor.

Course Topic: From its humble beginnings in 1237 as a sandy patch of land and trading post on the Spree River to a postmodern metropolis filled with shimmering glass and steel facades, Berlin has continually reinvented itself. In its 775-year history, Berlin has been at the center of many of Europe's major political, social, artistic, and scientific developments. This seminar examines Berlin's turbulent history over the last four hundred years with special attention to those moments that exemplify the glitter and doom of the German cultural heritage.

We begin with eighteenth-century Enlightenment and philosopher-king Frederick the Great, who was an accomplished flautist, commissioned Europe's first opera house outside a royal court, promoted the grand architectural vision of Karl Friedrich Schinkel, welcomed migration from Huguenots, Scots, and Jews, developed the notion of benevolent despotism, and institutionalized Prussian militarism. The nineteenth-century was engrossed in the long path to national unity in 1871. We explore the political doctrine of Blood and Iron Chancellor Otto Bismarck, the paintings of artist Adolph Menzel, and the architectural milestones of the Reichstag building and the Victory Column. Twentieth-century Berlin was the site of many of Germany's greatest artistic accomplishments and its fall into the barbarism of two world wars, two dictatorships, and genocide. Primary emphasis in this course is on the twentieth century. We review the roaring twenties by juxtaposing innovations in the arts (cabaret, film, and works by expressionist and new objectivity painters, writers, and musicians) to the social upheavals resulting from the lost war, suffrage for women, and violent street battles between rival political camps. In our study of the Third Reich, we examine the monumental architectural visions of Adolf Hitler and Albert Speer and the "degenerate art exhibition," read memoirs of those persecuted, and learn about Sachsenhausen concentration camp on the outskirts of town. In the aftermath of the Second World War, Berlin became a divided city and the battle line in the Cold War between two opposing political systems. We study the history behind the construction and fall of the Berlin wall and the secret Stasi prison in Hohenschönhausen through an examination of the film The Life of Others. Finally, we learn about twenty-first-century Berlin, Germany's vibrant capital city of 3.4 million inhabitants, that is renowned for its innovative artistic scene, world-class museums and concerts, diverse ethnic population, peaceful democratic government, and forward looking Zeitgeist.

Course Expectations:

The course aims to familiarize students with some of the key themes in European cultural history through an intensive and interactive case study of the city of Berlin.

Learning Outcomes:

Knowledge and Understanding

To provide students with a basic understanding and general knowledge about the history and culture of Berlin. Themes include the history of Prussia; Enlightened despotism; neo-classical art and architecture; the Second Empire, German unification, and the construction of nationhood through war, art, and architecture; Germany's participation in two world wars and National Socialism; the artistic achievements and the social upheavals in the Weimar Republic; Hitler's grandiose plans for Germania, the persecution of the Jews and other minorities in the Third Reich; Berlin as a divided city in the Cold War era and aspects of the GDR as surveillance police state; the cultural and political identity of Berlin today.

Critical Skills:

- To develop critical and comparative reading skills by examining both primary and secondary sources.
- To enhance students' ability to read and think critically about scholarly writing by examining a variety of texts from different theoretical and interpretative perspectives
- To develop better oral and written communication skills as they pertain to the study of the history and culture in Germany
- To foster an awareness of the importance of debate in scholarly writing and knowledge.

Course Grades will be based on:

- Blank maps of Berlin, Germany, and Europe (10%)
- Participation and attendance at class meetings (10%)
- Homework Assignments (10%)
- Mid-Term Examination (25%)
- One research paper of 4-5 pages (20%)
- Final Exam (25%)
