Web site

General Format

References Cited:
Last Name, First Name and Initial (s) of Author[followed by First name, Initial(s), and Last Name of Other Authors, if any]
Year Title of article. Title of journal or book or web site. <URL> Date accessed.

In-Text:
General reference to the ideas: (Author's Last Name Year)
Specific reference to page number(s) of a quote or idea: (Author's Last Name Year:Page Number[s] is possible)

Note:
1. Full names of author (if available) should be used in place of initials. If you cannot find a person as an author, use the organization or publisher as the author. If you cannot find any author, put "anonymous" as the author. But, is it necessary and credible to use ideas from a source for which you cannot find an author?
2. Include the date the electronic information was posted to the web site. If you cannot find a date, the information might not be credible or reliable.
3. Do not use a period at the end of the names.
4. Use a period at the end of the reference.
5. Do not put the article title in quotation marks and do not italicize the journal title.
6. Include the date you accessed the web site. If somebody accesses the site at a different time and the information has changed, the reader will know if the web site had been updated since you last accessed it.

Example #1: Web site with publisher as author

References Cited:
Country Watch

In-Text: (Country Watch 2003)
Example #2: Web sites with person as author

References Cited:
Gallagher, Colleen

In-Text: (Gallagher 2002)

References Cited:
Grate, Lynnette

In-Text: (Grate 2002)

References Cited:
Moore, Don

In-Text: (Moore 1989)

Example #3: Personal home page

References Cited:
Pellegrino J.

In-Text: (Pellegrino 1999)
Example #4: Professional organization's web site:

References Cited:
Council of Biology Editors [CBE]

In-Text: (Council of Biology Editors 1999)