I currently have my own jewelry start-up called Asu designs that is about the Latinx identity. I am currently participating in a business plan competition and looking for grants. It has been an exciting process. Skidmore's metal's program and business program was helpful, as well as the Career Development Center, that helped me get this past summer internship and gave me the tools to go in this direction.

My two independent studies senior year definitely shaped the direction I wanted to go with in my career, as one was business industry analysis on the online jewelry industry, and the other was about the role of the sun and moon in Ching & Monica jewelry. Skidmore's entrepreneurial spirit is what has truly shaped me and I have been connecting with alumni who have been giving me advice and connections.

– Alison Ungaro

I have been working in Albany, NY as a biochemist for Albany Molecular Research Inc., a pharmaceutical company. I am part of the Fermentation and Biocatalysis group, which means we utilize microorganisms, like yeast or E. coli, to help us synthesize desired compounds. My day-to-day activities are all within a lab setting, helping to figure out how to optimize procedures in which drugs and their components are made.

Since graduating in May, I have started working full time as an associate for PricewaterhouseCoopers in their Advisory practice. My time at Skidmore has given me the knowledge and ability to seamlessly transition from college to the real world. Even beyond the classes I took for my majors, I found that the depth of a liberal arts education has helped me to develop a holistic approach to solving problems during or outside of work. Beyond the classroom, I continue to stay connected with many of my classmates, who I consider some of my closest friends.

– Nicholas Fronte

I have taken my career to the next level and focused on ways I can continue developing the skills and knowledge I acquired while in college. I work at UBS in New York City as an Investment Banking business analyst. My “new life” is everything but boring – living in NYC is a dream coming true as much as it is a challenge. I have met incredible individuals and reconnected to so many Skidmore alums, who have made my transition from college to adulthood a much more enjoyable one. And none of this would be possible hadn’t I taken advantage of the opportunities that came on my way when I was on campus, from classes to relationships I built with professors and staff. Long story short: Skidmore prepared me to be the professional and individual I am today: and growth doesn’t stop – I want to achieve more and bring others with me just as Skidmore taught me.

After graduation, I moved to New York City and began work within the Supervision group at the Federal Reserve. My job often requires that I provide concise judgement of bank adequacy based on a wealth of information. No single class at Skidmore prepared me for what I do now. Taken as a whole, however, my education taught me to think critically and communicate effectively – both skills I use every day. Thanks Skidmore!

The shifting of Skidmore salary reporting is significant, as increasing evidence has demonstrated that wage stagnation is not limited to insufficiently skilled workers, but educated workers as well.

Wage stagnation has increased in 2017, topping 4% in the second quarter of 2018, the highest rate since mid-2018, according to the US Labor Department.

The figure below from the Bureau of Labor Statistics and The Washington Post demonstrates that wage growth is no longer keeping pace with inflation.

This suggests that the increased salary earnings by graduates is due to increased preparation that yields higher starting levels of compensation.

Wage growth is no longer keeping up with inflation
