In Their Own Words:

If you are interested in attending law school, I recommend that you focus on obtaining a good GPA and preparing to take the LSATs. I also recommend that you enjoy all that Skidmore has to offer by taking advantage of study abroad programs and the diverse course offerings.

While I was an economics major at Skidmore, I was also able to take piano lessons each semester and play the viola in the orchestra. I also have wonderful memories of spending my entire junior year studying in London.

Christina Ryba 1998

You don't have to sacrifice one area of interest to pursue another. It may take some creativity to find a way to blend your interests so they are marketable, but it often makes you a more intriguing candidate for a job or grad school. Combining my French and economics majors, in both my senior thesis and future graduate school plans, has made for a much more rewarding path at Skidmore and after.

Be open to other opportunities that present themselves, even if they don't perfectly align with your plan. While I always thought I would go straight back into a degree program after Skidmore, taking a detour to work in Washington, DC, with its new and diverse perspectives, is giving me a new view into my possibilities after grad school.
