In Their Own Words:

Do not rule out anything and don't get intimidated by the process of 'figuring out' your major. You will be surprised to see how your interests seem to fall into place after taking some core requirements for the major.

Elana Hazghia, 2010

Use on-campus recruiting opportunities. It is true what they say the real world is hard. Talk to people, do informational interviews, network. I am happy to speak with anyone and everyone.

Skylar Sasson, 2012

I recommend taking advantage of any and every opportunity that is available. While studying abroad in Berlin, Germany, last spring, I had the option to extend my stay by two months to intern with one of the political parties in the German Parliament. I took advantage of this opportunity, as well as the SEE-Beyond Scholarship that Skidmore offers a $4,000 grant for summer internships and was able to continue living, working, and studying in Berlin through the summer of 2014.

Catherine King, 2015
