August DuClos is a young jazz bassist born and raised in New York City. Being exposed to music at a young age and raised by two acclaimed and globally recognized musicians, Michael DuClos, bass, and Eszter Balint, Violinist and singer/songwriter, August has had music in his life since before he was born. Picking up the upright bass at the end of his sophomore year of college, he has quickly dedicated his life to this instrument. In the past two years, he has an already developed long list of venues and performances where he has both led groups and worked as a sideman, including playing at the Camden Opera House for the Jazz in June festival and the notorious club Hinterraum in Berlin. Looking to study jazz performance both professionally and academically post-grad, he is excited to showcase his final capstone recital at Skidmore College before going on a national tour this summer. August is honored to be performing his compositions, arrangements, and personal favorites on the stage where he has seen so many inspiring and influential performances.

August would like to thank his parents Michael and Eszter for everything they have done for him as mentors, musicians, and educators. They made him who he is.
